

Amita Kumari is an Assistant Professor in the Department of History at Sido Kanhu Murmu University, Dumka, Jharkhand. Her research interests span migration studies, Adivasi history, and gender studies. Currently, she is pursuing her Ph.D. at Presidency University, Kolkata, where her doctoral research focuses on the colonial history of Santals, an indigenous community in Jharkhand.

Amita has completed two significant research projects on Adivasi women. The first, conducted in 2018 and sponsored by the Indian Association of Women's Studies, was titled "Gendering the Study of Santals: Portrayal, Construction, and Agency of Santal Women." The second project, an action research component of an international collaboration (2021-23), was titled "A Research Study to Further Gender Equality in Higher Education in India." This project was a joint initiative by Savitribai Phule Pune University, Pune, and Brunel University, London, sponsored by the British Council.

Her notable publications include 'Delhi as Refuge: Resettlement and Assimilation of Partition Refugees' in Economic and Political Weekly (Vol XLVIII, No 44, November 2, 2013); 'The Gender Politics of Plough: Asymmetrical Taboos and Santal Women' in Sociological Bulletin (Vol 70, No 1, 2021); and 'Invisible, Unheard, Unrepresented: Locating Women in Santal Traditional Political Space' in Economic and Political Weekly (Vol LVI, No 25, June 19, 2021), among others.