

Navsharan Singh is an author and activist. She has a strong background in women's rights, human rights and social and cultural movements. Through her published work she has made contributions to the understanding of state impunity for mass violence as well as to the understanding of sexual violence against women. She has researched and published widely on Citizenship, Land rights, and Reparations for mass violence. Her current work revolves around agrarian crisis in Punjab and landless Dalits and women in the crisis. Her academic work and activism have enabled her to address different audiences and engage in academic, literature, art and culture, women's movements, and democratic rights spheres in India and South Asia. She holds degrees in economics, political economy, and a Ph. D in political science from Carleton University, Canada. Some of her published works include Landscapes of Fear: Understanding Impunity in India (Co-Ed) (Zubaan 2015); contributions to Splintered Justice Living the Horror of Mass Communal Violence in Bhagalpur and Gujarat (Three Essays collective 2016); Writing Dalit women in political economy of agrarian crisis and resistance in Punjab (2017); Continents Wide and Layers Deep - The Ready-made Garment Industry in the Times of Restructuring; Sexual Violence and Impunity in South Asia (Zubaan 2017) and This Land Is Mine, I Am Not Of This Land : CAA-NRC And The Manufacture Of Statelessness, (Co-ed), (Speaking Tiger 2021). She writes in English and Punjabi.